FOREWORD

The Market News Program of the Consumer and Marketing Service is dependent on the help of public news media stretching across the country. There would be no market news program without radio, television, and newspapers, to help get the information to farmers, buyers, marketers, and everyone else.

HOW TO GET MORE INFORMATION

If you have any questions about the availability or contents of market news reports, you may obtain answers from any of the Federal-State market news offices, or the Information Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

FEDERAL-STATE MARKET NEWS REPORTS;

A Directory of Services Available

Accurate, up-to-the-minute information on the supply, demand, prices, and movement of agricultural products is important to the marketing industry, which helps channel food and fiber from the farm to the consumer.

The Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, cooperating with the State Departments of Agriculture, helps provide this information.

From its start in 1915, the market news service has grown to keep pace with the revolution in marketing until today information on all major farm commodities is provided through a nationwide network of about 210 field offices. Trading is reported from major terminal markets as well as from important production and shipping areas. For rapid exchange of information, most of these market information offices are connected by a network of approximately 22,500 miles of leased teletypewriter lines.

The importance of market news to the farmer cannot be minimized. The reports help farmers plan their marketing--how much and what kind of product to grow, where and when to market, whether or not to accept a price bid.

In addition, market news helps keep the pipelines of the Nation filled--but not overflowing--preventing unnecessary and wasteful gluts and shortages and helping provide consumers with a reliable and reasonably priced supply of foods and fiber to meet their daily needs.

These reports tell merchants where to find the supplies they may be seeking. They indicate where and when transport facilities will be needed, on the basis of daily supplies and demands. They help guide consumers to bargains resulting from temporary abundance. Supermarkets, clothing manufacturers, banks, industrial firms, and even insurance companies are just a few of the others interested in market news.

Reports are prepared in the field offices under the direction of the C&MS commodity divisions in Washington. Most field offices cover only the products assigned to the commodity division of which they are a part. They report on commodities in their own markets and provide summaries from other markets important to those patronizing the local market.

Radio stations, television stations, newspapers, trade papers, and other media may obtain market news reports through direct contact with the market news offices; through regular mailed market news reports; or from wire services to which they subscribe.

This publication contains: a listing of Federal-State market news reports and the offices that issue them; a description of the market news leased-wire network; a tabulation of cities from which market news reports are issued; a directory of automatic telephone answering devices; and a map showing the location of market news offices.

Where reports are available by mail, they will be sent free on request. Requests may be sent to the office issuing the report, or to the appropriate commodity division at the Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.
